ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Ragai N. Makar (B.A., Cairo University; M.L.I.S., Pratt University; M.A. in Sociology, Adelphi University) is head of the Aziz S. Atiya Library for Middle East Studies at the University of Utah Marriott Library, U.S.A.

His professional career has placed him in the role of teacher, author, librarian, and scholar. He has been an academic librarian in United States universities since 1969, has taught in high schools in both Egypt and the Sudan, and has translated books for UNFPA and the Franklin Book Program of USIA Book Program.

He has compiled numerous bibliographies, including Egypt: A Bibliography (London, 1988) and American Books Translated into Arabic (Cairo, 1989). His papers have appeared in Middle East Library Notes, ʿĀlam al-Kutub (Riyadh), al-Thaqāfah Magazine (Cairo), and Arab Social Sciences (London); and book reviews have been published in Library Journal, Armed Forces and Society, and Digest for Middle East Studies, among many other periodicals. He is a professional English-Arabic-English translator and interpreter for the State of Utah Courts of Law.

Makar is a member of the Middle East Studies Association, North America, and of the Middle East Librarians' Association. His professional travels have taken him to England, Canada, Jordan, Kuwait, Iraq, Morocco, Qatar, Sudan, Syria, Tunisia, and Turkey.
